

A naming ceremony is a lovely way of celebrating the birth of a new baby. Many couples feel that it is appropriate to have a special occasion to celebrate the birth of a baby that can be shared with their family and friends. They can also be used to celebrate adoptive children and step children becoming part of a new family.

Any parent can arrange a naming ceremony, whether they are married or not and irrespective of spiritual, religious or cultural backgrounds. You create the promises to the child, from yourself, the others involved in their life, and between you and your partner.

A souvenir certificate of the ceremony will be signed and presented by the Celebrant during the ceremony.

It should be noted however that neither the naming ceremony nor any documents issued as part of the proceedings has any legal status.

HELP AND ADVICE

ACelebrant “celebrates” people’s lives on their big occasions and a marriage/civil partnership or baby naming are just some of these.

Did you know, the “Legal Bit” when registering a marriage by a registrar in their office, need only cost around £50. If you don’t believe me, ask your local registrar’s office.

If you ask the registrar to marry you outside of their “registered premises”, their office, they have to use other “registered premises” hotels etc. which pay a licence to be so registered. The registrar and assistant have various rules they have to obey for the Ceremony they conduct. No religion and they charge for their visits, up to £450 for a Bank Holiday weekend if you can manage to co-ordinate the venue and their diary.

What if you could “do the legal bit”, in your own time and at your own convenience, in their office in the morning, the day or month before, or even afterwards. This would then remove all your restrictions for your Wedding Celebration, which you could design yourself, and hold it where you like.

A trained Celebrant can design and conduct a complete ceremony, based on the usual marriage ceremony, tailor made to your satisfaction, with music you choose, theme you choose, and you could hold it where and when you like, in a marquee in the open air, at home, at the golf club, in the village hall, on the beach, in the sea, in the air, in the evening, you name it (and get permission from the owner) and have the celebration of your life.

Many couples also use Celebrants when renewing their vows after many happy years being married.

And at the end of the day, because you are not restricted to licensed premises, and “loaded costs” with all the relevant conditions, it may also be cheaper, which equals more money to spend on the occasion, the honeymoon, or home.
